Re: DECD OEA/RADE – Task 5, ITC Equipment Correspondence, dated July 13, 2018

Subject: CCAT Audit Reply

Dear Commissioner Smith,

In response to the above-referenced DECD letter to CCAT, I am writing to address items 1 – 3 on page 2, specifically:

1. Having received your letter on April 27, 2018 instructing CCAT to “cease and desist using the equipment,” I certify that CCAT did, in fact, discontinue use of the equipment effective Friday, April 27, 2018.
2. The following are the issues and reasons for the use of the ITC equipment for the following companies:
  - a. [REDACTED] 1/2018, used GOM-ATOS blue-light scanner to reverse engineer an [REDACTED] to create a 3D surface model. Labor was not charged to the OEA/RADE contract, but rather to CMSCI as [REDACTED] is a Connecticut company.
  - b. [REDACTED] – 2/2018, used GOM ATOS blue-light scanner to reverse engineer [REDACTED] to create a 3D surface model. Labor was not charged to the OEA/RADE contract, but rather to CMSCI as [REDACTED] is a Connecticut company.
  - c. [REDACTED] – 2/2018, used GOM ATOS blue-light scanner and NSI X5000 CT X-Ray Scanner to reverse engineer an [REDACTED] and create a 3D surface model to have an [REDACTED] manufactured. Labor was not charged to the OEA/RADE contract, but rather directly to [REDACTED] in the amount of [REDACTED]
  - d. [REDACTED] – 1/2018, used NSI X5000 CT X-Ray Scanner to improve several prototypes of [REDACTED] product that had [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] was pursuing federal funding. Labor was not charged to the OEA/RADE contract, but rather to CMSCI as [REDACTED] is a Connecticut company.

- e. [REDACTED] – 4/2017 – CCAT's white-light scanner was used to produce a scan of a [REDACTED] part to produce a 3D surface model for which [REDACTED] needed FDA-approval. Labor was not charged to the OEA/RADE contract, but rather directly to [REDACTED] in the amount of [REDACTED]. Because CCAT needed to train staff on the use of the ITC equipment, the [REDACTED] part was placed on the GOM ATOS blue-light scanner for less than one hour for training purposes.

3. CCAT certifies that it will reimburse the two companies that were charged fees for their projects as follows:

[REDACTED]

As always, I welcome the opportunity to meet with you to discuss future use of the ITC equipment.

Sincerely,

Tracey—

If we say Tuesday, the 31st, is there a chance that the meeting could be at 3:30? Elliot has a meeting with Mayor Bronin at 2:00.
